Council Corner—Bonita Eliason

We drove our son Jeff to his new home in Massachusetts this fall. At Concordia College Jeff experienced overlapping communities of faculty, students, and musicians that made his experience there both rewarding and fun. Now at graduate school he must find community in a different place. I had ample time on the drive back to Minnesota to ponder the Prince of Peace community, and my own values and understandings related to community. What characteristics do I value in the communities that I choose as my own? One is shared interests - and music is one interest I share with many in the Prince of Peace community. The opportunity to participate as a singer, bell ringer and listener has enriched my life, and binds me to the community. A second shared interest is to better understand what it means to be a Christian, and how to live in accordance with my beliefs. Worship and education opportunities at Prince of Peace help satisfy this interest.

Through my participation in the church council, I've come to appreciate the importance of another aspect of community: clearly articulated governance policies (yes, really!). One of the ironies of the human experience is that although we are social animals, who both seek and benefit from community, we often have trouble finding a path we can all peacefully travel together. There are many reasons for this. We are, after all, individuals, and there is never be a perfect match between each individual's interests and desires, and those of the community as a whole. We can also be very passionate advocates for our own point of view. Clearly defined governance documents such as the constitution and by-laws are a crucial reference and anchor that help guide us as we make decisions about our community life.

Balancing the interests of individuals with the interest of the community can be particularly challenging in times of transition. A characteristic of community that is crucial to finding this balance is good will. An abundance of good will is evident at Prince of Peace in Sharing in the Gospel – And Giving Thanks!

I thank my God every time I remember you ... because of your sharing in the gospel Philippians 1:3-6

The apostle Paul was always writing letters to the various Christian congregations that developed those first years after Jesus. He wrote to encourage them in this new faith and following of Jesus that they were living into. He wrote to address theological questions that had come up, or a problem in how they should live together in community. He wrote to ask for an offering to be taken up in support of the ministry that they shared. He wrote letters to stay connected. Many of the books of the New Testament are epistles – letters to congregations in places like Galatia, Philippi and Rome. Paul began each letter by giving thanks to God for them. I would like to do the same. I begin this Vine article – and this month of November where we pay special attention to giving thanks – by giving thanks to God for you – the people of this congregation.

I give thanks for the way God's Spirit moves in our lives –

- To draw us into the mystery and majesty of God;
- To draw us into community and congregational life with one another
- To draw us into mission and ministry for the sake of God's reign – God's will on earth as it is in heaven

I give thanks to God for your sharing in the gospel. I can read the Bible by myself, but I get more out of it when I read it in community with you. I can praise God by myself, but I make a more joyful noise when we do it together. I can strive for justice for God's people by myself, but I'm more hopeful, and more effective, when we strive together.

And so, every November, we, as members of a congregation, commit to our life together. We ask members to 1) renew their membership at Prince of Peace, and 2) make and estimate of giving in monetary support for the work and joy of our sharing in the gospel. It is a way of giving thanks to God -- for the gift of the gospel in Jesus Christ and for the community that we share in his name.

As we commit to being a member of this part of the body of Christ called Prince of Peace in Roseville, we commit to the joy and work of sharing in the gospel – together. As we commit money in support of our work and life together, we commit to the joy and work of sharing in the gospel – together. Thanks be to God!

I thank my God every time I remember you, constantly praying with joy in every one of my prayers for all of you, because of your sharing in the gospel from the first day until now. I am confident of this, that the one who began a good work among you will bring it to completion by the day of Jesus Christ.

Message from Pastor Gordon Peterson

On Vitality: One in Mission and Transition

Many of you know my name. You know that I am a Lutheran pastor serving as your Interim Pastor for Transition (read Transformation) and Mission. Many of you know that I'm married to Cathie. Some of you know that we have two daughters, one son-in-law and one granddaughter (yeah!). A few of you know that I'm of Scandinavian heritage with a sprinkling of German (uff da - meine liebe). This information helps you to begin to know me. There are, of course, many other things that give definition to my life just as there are many factors that define who you are. For example, if I really want to know you and you want to know me, it would be important for us to know what matters to each other.

What often matters most, along with our relationships, are the ideas, the issues, the concerns, hopes, the dreams and the details of our life that further define who I am and who you are. What "matters" provides a framework of purposefulness.

I believe this is, also, true for churches, including congregations like Prince of Peace Lutheran Church in Roseville, Minnesota. If I want to know Prince of Peace Lutheran Church (and I do!), I need know Prince of Peace in terms of your relationships (family- origin - culture - experience - history) and what you believe truly matters to this congregation. Is it your presence in the community? Is it the wonderful music program? Is it the growing Sunday school? Is it the faithful volunteers? Is it the opportunity that you have to worship our awesome God?

Identity, purpose (what matters) and vision are critical elements in the process of understanding who we are and what God is calling us to become as God's promise people. The elements will help your Transition Team frame their work in the coming days, weeks and months.

In my experience, I've observed that those congregations willing to ask the right questions (Who are we?) and the difficult questions (What matters?) are the congregations with the most vitality. These congregations come in all sizes. Some are very small and others are quite large. Their vitality isn't measured only in their size. Their vitality includes being open to the questions and the possibilities of becoming what God intends for us to be

What do you think God is calling Prince of Peace to "become"? Where do you think God is calling Prince of Peace to be present? Where do you believe God is calling you to follow and to be the presence of Christ in this time and in this place? I would love to know your answer and so would the members of the Transition Team! The Transition Team members are: Janet Brahier, Stephanie Lundorff, Jon Lentsch, Kent Olson, Damien Riehl, Hadley Verwest, and David Weiler. I serve as a resource to the Team (player/coach).

Happy Thanksgiving!

"It is right to give thanks and praise."

Wed. Nov. 24 7:00 Thanksgiving Eve service

Nov. 28th Traditional / Advent 1

- Special music at both Services

November is a month of Thanksgiving. We celebrate the saints who've gone before us, the veteran's that served to keep our country free, Christ the King and Thanksgiving itself. After all that, the anticipation of Christmas begins in Advent. What a month! Who are you thankful for, both past and present? Who do you know that served or is serving in the armed forces? How do you spend your Thanksgiving? How do you prepare for Christmas?

With all there is to be thankful for it's hard not to close with a line from a hymn of thanksgiving, but my thoughts are already focusing in on Advent. How do we prepare for Christmas? I think that it is extremely helpful to prepare for Christmas by taking time to give thanks. I wonder if that is why Thanksgiving and Advent are so close together. How can we prepare for the greatest gift if we are not thankful for all that we have? In the hymn "Come Now, O prince of Peace" Marion Pope translates Geonyong Lee, in the 4th verse, "Come, Hope of unity, make us one body. Come, O Lord Jesus, reconcile all nations." As we move forward in our transition, my hope is that we can work together to make Prince of Peace a "living" presence of Christ.

May God bless us all, Milt

All Saints Day comes each November 1st. This is the day that we set aside to remember those saints among us who have left this earth this last year and joined the heavenly realm of saints. This is a time for remembering folks who have had an impact on our lives. Some years these saints who left us here have had a larger impact than other years.

As I reflect on this last year, I realize that this has been one of those years when saints important in my life have departed from our presence. We will all remember Andrew Rogness this year. As we celebrate his life with us, we share memories of our time together. In reflecting, we feel joy for having been able to share in his life. We feel sadness in the ending of our time together. We mourn lost dreams. Many of us will light a candle in his memory as we thank God for his gift of Andrew to us.

Many of us will be remembering others who departed from us this year. We will feel sadness for our loss. We will mourn lost memories and dreams. We will feel joy as we celebrate their life with us, the time we shared together, and the memories we have. We will light a candle in their memory as we thank God for his gift of our loved one to us.

Some years the celebration comes easier than other years. Some years their departure from us leaves a deeper sadness. We know that when we look through the resurrection, we are able to rejoice that those who have gone before us wait for us to join them in the realm of saints who live forever in Christ Jesus, our Lord. We thank God for his gift of all the saints, those who have gone home before us and those who live among us.

November 7 – Transition at Prince of Peace, led by the Transition Team As we celebrate All Saints' Sunday, we will come together for a "Congregation History Event." We will celebrate the ministry of Prince of Peace by looking at those pivotal moments in our life together. The conversation will help guide the Transition Team's ministry as they look toward the future and consider what part of our history should be left in the past and what we should carry forward into God's preferred future.

November 14 - Ministering to Military Families This program suggests how local communities can organize and support program. "Beyond the Yellow Ribbon" provides help and assistance to Guard and Reserve Families while one or both parents are deployed on extended active duty.

November 18—"I'm Telling" Prince of Peace will be presenting a new play, "I'm Telling" which has been written, directed and produced by the drama department of Augsburg College. It has been presented previously at the Illusion Theatre. The play gives a voice to the silent joys, worries, guilt and sorrows that women and men experience while parenting. The play has been described as a place where the "familiar, desperate edge of everyday motherhood comes to life." This play will give the viewers a chance to dialogue around these experiences.

Performances will be at Prince of Peace on Thurs. evening, Nov/ 18th. This special event will begin with dessert at 7:15 p.m. The play will begin at 8:00 p.m. Reservations for this free event can be made between services or by calling the church office at 651-484-4144.

Our Karen children go to Edgerton Elementary. The English Language Learner (ELL) teacher, Nenette Onstad, sent this request.

I am writing to all the wonderful people who've helped our Edgerton ELL students in the past. Unfortunately, this year we will not have a teaching assistant to work with ELL students. Last year, the TAs primarily worked with ELL students using an online reading program called raz-kids. It is a wonderful, interactive read-aloud program that really boosts kids' reading skills. The Lutheran Malaria Initiative

Every 45 seconds a child dies from Malaria. Malaria is preventable and treatable. The time to act is now! Together, through the Lutheran Malaria Initiative, we can restore health and inspire hope for millions of people.

The 2009 ELCA Churchwide Assembly voted overwhelmingly to begin initial Lutheran Malaria Initiative activities in the ELCA. This initiative is in support of the United Nations Millennium Development goals (Goal #6), established at the onset of this century and to be attained by 2015. The ELCA, the Missouri Synod, and Lutheran World Relief hope to raise $75 million to reduce deaths in Africa by 2015.

In 2010-11 the ELCA is piloting the Initiative in a number of synods across the country. The Mpls. Area Synod is one of these. In August of 2011, the ELCA Churchwide Assembly will consider an action that would roll out the Lutheran Malaria Initiative to the whole ELCA. The ultimate goal is that every ELCA synod will join the Lutheran Malaria Initiative in the efforts to contain malaria in Africa.

Find out more about the ELCA Malaria Initiative on Wednesday, November 10, the "Celebration of Compassion: the Nuts about NETS!" at Central Lutheran.

Come learn about the insecticide-treated bed nets that offer a cheap and efficient way to stop malaria.

As one who had malaria 5 times while working in Africa through the ELCA, I can appreciate how much this Initiative means to millions of people.

the welcoming of visitors and new members, in the countless hours that are contributed by volunteers to support the community, and in the caring for others and the world that are embodied in our social ministries. At other times, such as at difficult decision points over which there is disagreement, good will is evident as we pray for wisdom, listen to all points of view, and give others the “benefit of the doubt”.

I know Jeff will be ok. He is already finding a place in the academic and social communities of his new environment (it turns out that even physical chemists enjoy basketball!) And luckily, he is a person of good will, with a fairly high tolerance for the diversity and foibles of his fellow humans. I am confident (but I also pray) that Prince of Peace will be ok too; that the Spirit will move among us and through us to help us to become a rejuvenated community, united around a mission shaped by our shared interests, guided by robust rules, and buoyed by an abundance of good will.
